

MONETISATION AUDIT

Barbara Haeger

@barbarahaegerart · 33,256 followers

Bullet journalling that turns daily mental clutter into calm, creative focus — one five-minute page at a time.

CONSERVATIVE ESTIMATE

$33,260

What it is: one dedicated digital product, sold once to the audience you already have.

The assumption it rests on: 10% of your 1,663 most engaged followers buy a single $200 system, after a full launch.

WHAT IS INSIDE

- What your numbers actually say
- Where the $33,260 comes from, line by line
- A three-step ladder: $29 → $49 → $200
- The ebook, broken down chapter by chapter
- A six-phase launch plan
- The first post to publish this week

Figures are estimates based on public data and this audit

SECTION ONE

What your numbers say

All of this is public data from your profile and your last twelve posts. Nothing here is guessed.

33,256

FOLLOWERS

873

POSTS

190

AVG LIKES

0.6%

ENGAGEMENT

Your average post earns 190 likes and 8 comments. That is your baseline — and it is the baseline that makes the next three numbers interesting, because some of your pages beat it by a mile.

Your three content pillars

PILLAR 1Seasonal covers & resets

473 likes, 21 comments on your September cover — Life is better in a sweater. Two and a half times your average.

Sales potential: high. They come for the inspiration, they stay for permission to reset.

PILLAR 2Habit trackers & wellness

246 likes on the mid-August weekly with calories, protein, exercise, water, zero sugar and stretching. 213 on back-to-school.

Sales potential: high. They are reading your systems, not just your lettering.

PILLAR 3Routines & calendars

216 likes, 14 comments on the August monthly. 183 on going back to the school office.

Sales potential: medium. This is where the trust and the relatability live.

The verdict

The spikes are not random. They land on seasonal resets and on functional trackers — the two moments where your pages stop being pretty and start being useful. That is pent-up demand for a practical system, not for more inspiration. An offer built on that transformation has a high probability of converting.

SECTION TWO

Where the number comes from

Four inputs, one multiplication. Here it is so you can argue with any part of it.

INPUT	WHERE IT COMES FROM	VALUE
Follower base	Public profile data	33,256
Engaged audience	5% market premise — the share reachable across a multi-week launch	1,663
Conversion (low)	10% of the engaged audience	166 buyers
Conversion (high)	15% of the engaged audience	249 buyers
Price	One dedicated digital product	$200

CONSERVATIVE ESTIMATE

$33,260

$1,663 \times 10\% \times \200

CEILING ESTIMATE

$49,890

$1,663 \times 15\% \times \200

The assumption to watch. Your average post is seen by enough people to earn 190 likes — 0.6% of your followers. The 1,663 figure is not one post. It assumes a launch that touches far more of your audience than a single spread does: stories, polls, DMs, a private group, over several weeks. That is exactly why the launch plan on page 10 is not optional.

If the premise is wrong

Suppose only 3% of your followers are truly reachable rather than 5%. That is 998 people. At the same 10% conversion and the same $200 price: $998 \times 10\% \times $200 = $19,960$. Still a year of a system you build once. Every figure in this document is an estimate, and this is the one that moves them all.

SECTION TWO, CONTINUED

The maths for all three products

All three rungs now run on the same conversion: 10–15% of the same 1,663 engaged followers. That only holds if each product gets the same treatment as the big one — stories, a clear reveal, DMs — so the plan on page 10 applies to the ebook and the playbook too.

PRODUCT	ASSUMPTION	BUYERS	REVENUE
Ebook 5-Minute Daily Wellness Tracker · $29	10–15% of the 1,663 engaged, with a full story-led push behind it	166–249	$4,823–$7,234
Playbook Seasonal Journal Reset · $49	10–15% of the 1,663 engaged, per seasonal release, same push	166–249	$8,149–$12,223
System Visual Habit Architecture · $200	10–15% of the 1,663 engaged, with the full six-phase launch	166–249	$33,260–$49,890
One release of each, one year	Estimate, all assumptions above holding	498–748	$46,231–$69,347

Read the total carefully. The same 166–249 people sit in every row — these are purchases, not three separate crowds — so the bottom line assumes a good share of them buy more than once across the year. Treat it as the top of the ladder rather than a forecast; the single number to plan around is still the $33,260 on the cover.

Rounding

Buyer counts are rounded down to whole people; revenue is calculated on the unrounded percentage. $1,663 \times 10\%$ is 166.3 buyers, which is where \$33,260 comes from rather than \$33,200.

The playbook, four times a year

If an autumn, winter, spring and summer edition each converted at the same rate — the least safe assumption in this document — that is $32,596–$48,892 a year from one repeatable product.

SECTION THREE

The product ladder

Three rungs. Each one is something you already make, sold instead of given away. Build them in this order — cheapest first, because it is the fastest proof.

$29

The 5-Minute Daily Wellness Tracker

An ebook. The minimal tracking method: health, stress, hydration, movement. No doodling required.

For: the follower who loves your pages but thinks she could never draw them.

$49

The Seasonal Journal Reset Playbook

Layout blueprints, monthly setup checklists and a quarterly goal framework. Never start from a blank page again.

For: the people who liked your September cover 473 times.

$200

The Visual Habit Architecture System

The complete method for designing, setting up and keeping a journal that tracks wellness and priorities without burnout or perfectionism.

For: working women and mothers drowning in planning apps.

RUNG	PRICE	WHAT IT REPLACES	BUYERS	REVENUE (EST.)
Ebook	$29	Screenshotting your spreads	166–249	$4,823–$7,234
Playbook	$49	An evening lost to Pinterest	166–249	$8,149–$12,223
System	$200	Three abandoned planners	166–249	$33,260–$49,890

The ladder is not three unrelated things. Chapter 2 of the ebook is the free-standing version of Module 2 of the system, and the playbook is the seasonal half of it. Everything you build is reused — and every rung is sold to the same 1,663 people, which is why the buyer counts match.

The Visual Habit Architecture System

166–249 BUYERS (EST.)

$33,260–$49,890 (EST.)

THE PROMISE

In six weeks, a journal you actually keep: ten minutes on a Sunday, five minutes a day, your water, protein, movement and sleep all in one place — and pages that still look like yours.

What is inside

- Module 1 — The week before the pen. Your own setup ritual, taught as a repeatable ten-minute Sunday.
- Module 2 — The tracker audit. Choosing the six trackers that match a real life: calories, protein, exercise, water, zero sugar, stretching. Which to keep, which to drop.
- Module 3 — Layouts that survive a bad week. Three weekly frameworks at ten, twenty and forty minutes, so a busy week does not end the habit.
- Module 4 — Lettering without perfectionism. One colour family a month, two pens, headers in under five minutes.
- Module 5 — The monthly reset and the seasonal cover. The spread that gets your audience most excited, taught step by step.
- Module 6 — Back on the wagon. The missed-week protocol, which is the reason most journals die in week three.
- Included: a printable dot-grid template pack, one live setup session per cohort, and a members space for spread shares.

The first step to build it

Record Module 2 before anything else. It is the module your 246-like August spread already proved people want, and it is the one you can film in an afternoon with your own journal, a pen and no script. If Module 2 is good, the rest is just more of the same — and it becomes the free preview that sells the other five.

OFFER DETAIL · THE EBOOK

The 5-Minute Daily Wellness Tracker

$29

APPROX. 40 PAGES, PDF

166–249 BUYERS (EST.)

A focused, minimalist tracking method for physical health, daily stress and mindful habits. Faster and lower effort than the full system, and built entirely around consistency rather than artistic doodling — which is exactly the objection you hear most: I could never make mine look like yours.

#	CHAPTER	WHAT THE READER WALKS AWAY WITH
1	Week three	Why the beautiful blank journal stalls, and the five-minute rule that stops it happening again.
2	The six trackers that earn their space	Water, protein, movement, zero sugar, stretching, calories — how to pick three to start and when to add the rest.
3	The week before the pen	Your ten-minute Sunday setup, drawn as a numbered sequence anyone can copy.
4	Two pens is enough	Minimal headers and simple keys that still look handmade — no lettering practice required.
5	The one-spread monthly reset	A single page that closes the month and opens the next, in fifteen minutes.
6	The missed-week protocol	What to write on the page after a gap, so the gap does not become the end.
7	The template pack	Six printable dot-grid trackers, ready to glue in: hydration, protein, movement, sleep, mood, monthly overview.

Every chapter is illustrated with spreads you have already photographed. This is not new work — it is your archive, ordered.

Price, maths and how to build it

CONSERVATIVE ESTIMATE

$4,823

$1,663 \text{ engaged} \times 10\% \times $29 = 166 \text{ buyers}$

UPPER ESTIMATE

$7,234

$1,663 \text{ engaged} \times 15\% \times $29 = 249 \text{ buyers}$

These use the same 10–15% conversion as the $200 system, so they carry the same condition: a week of stories, a proper reveal post and DM follow-up. Sold quietly off one ordinary post, expect a fraction of it.

Why $29

It is an impulse price for a stationery audience — less than a set of Tombow dual brush pens, which most of your followers have already bought on your say-so. Cheap enough to buy without asking anyone, expensive enough that the people who buy actually open it. Below $19 it reads as a freebie; above $49 it needs a sales page of its own, which is what the $200 system is for.

Build it in three weeks of evenings

- 1 Evenings 1–3: the spine
Write the seven chapter headings, then one page of plain text under each. No design yet. You already know all of it — you have posted it 873 times.
- 2 Evenings 4–7: the pages
Pull your existing spread photographs, one per chapter. Draw the six printable trackers on clean dot grid and scan them.
- 3 Evenings 8–10: the shop
Lay out in Canva, export as PDF, list on Gumroad or Payhip for instant delivery, add the link to your bio. One evening of testing the checkout on your own phone.

What the ebook is really for

Those 166–249 buyers are your first list of people who have paid you money, and they are the same engaged pool the system sells to — not a new audience on top. That is why the two products share a conversion rate. When the $200 doors open, this list is the first group you DM.

OFFER DETAIL · THE SEASONAL PRODUCT

The Seasonal Journal Reset Playbook

$49 PER EDITION

166–249 BUYERS (EST.)

$8,149–$12,223 PER RELEASE (EST.)

THE PROMISE

The next three months set up in one sitting — cover, monthly spreads, trackers and goals — without staring at a blank page on the first of the month.

What is inside each edition

- ❑ Twelve layout blueprints for the season: cover, monthly, weekly, habit page, memories page, reading and watching page.
- ❑ A monthly setup checklist — the order you do things in, so a spread takes thirty minutes instead of two hours.
- ❑ A quarterly goal-setting frame: three goals, the habits that feed them, the tracker that proves it.
- ❑ The seasonal colour card — your monthly theme approach, written down. Green for September, warm tones for autumn.
- ❑ Printable traceables of the seasonal motifs: apples, leaves, mushrooms, a cosy cat.

The first step to build it

Start with the autumn edition, and start with the exact cover that earned 473 likes and 21 comments. Rebuild it as a step-by-step blueprint — grid measurements, pen sizes, the order you drew it in — and you have the first blueprint plus the perfect sales image on the same afternoon. Release each edition two weeks before the season starts, while the reset feeling is at its strongest.

The 166–249 buyers here assume each release gets its own week of stories and a real open and close date, exactly like the system. Drop that and the number drops with it — the price is lower, but the effort to reach the same share of your audience is not.

SECTION FIVE

The launch plan

Six phases. This is the structure that gets the 1,663 figure anywhere near real, because it reaches people over weeks rather than in one post.

- 1 Build up
Engage the community and tease that something is coming. Interactive stories — polls, question boxes, DMs — on the pain points, plus your own results. High interaction is the only goal here.
- 2 Invitation
Announce that it is on the way and invite your audience into a private group (WhatsApp or Telegram) where all the details will be revealed. Tease a time-limited exclusive bonus.
- 3 Anticipation
Build curiosity inside the group. Tease what is coming, share the results people can achieve, and make the timeline crystal clear so everyone is ready to act the moment doors open.
- 4 Reveal
The full breakdown: what is included, the exclusive bonus, the price, and the open and close dates. Leave no doubt about what is on offer.
- 5 Conversion
Send the enrolment link, run a poll to see who is in and who has questions, then follow up one-to-one in the DMs with everyone who raises a hand. That is where most of the 166 come from.
- 6 Urgency
Countdown messages at 24h, 12h, 6h, 2h and closed, each one making them picture what staying out costs them. The close must be real — reopening destroys credibility for the next launch.

Where the ebook and the playbook sit

Sell the $29 ebook before Phase 1 of the big launch ever starts, and give it a short version of the same sequence: a week of stories, one clear reveal post, then DMs to everyone who replied. That push is exactly what its 166–249 buyers assume. Each playbook edition gets the same treatment on a one-week cycle.

SECTION SIX

The first post

Post this carousel this week, before you build anything. The audit calls for black background, white text — the abrupt change from your usual pages is part of why it stops the scroll.

SLIDE 1 · THE HOOK

You buy the beautiful blank journal.

And by week three it is sitting on the desk, untouched.

SLIDE 2 · THE AGITATION

It is not that you lack discipline.

You are copying complicated layouts that take hours, instead of using a simple framework that serves your life and keeps your habits consistent.

SLIDE 3 · THE ASK

What if your journal took five minutes a day, kept you accountable to your health, and felt like a daily breath of fresh air?

Reply I WANT if this resonates.

The caption, in your voice

Confession — I have done this too. The pretty new notebook, the big plans, and then week three happens and it goes quiet. What changed it for me was not more time or better lettering, it was a framework: ten minutes before the pen on Sunday, five minutes a day, and the same handful of trackers every single week. I am putting that method together properly. Reply I WANT and I will send it to you first.

#bulletjournal #scribblethatmatter #bujocommunity #bujoideas #journalart

Follow it with stories

Poll: has a journal ever gone quiet on you by week three? Yes / Every single time.

Question box: which habit do you keep losing track of?

Reply to every single one by hand.

What counts as a green light

The ebook case now assumes 166 buyers, and no single carousel delivers that — this post is a demand signal, not the sale. My rule of thumb: thirty or more I WANT replies off one post means the demand is real and worth building for. Above sixty, plan the $200 launch straight away.

CLOSING

What to do next

- 1 This week
Post the carousel on page 11 and run the two stories behind it. Count the I WANT replies.
Cost: one evening.
- 2 The next three weeks
Build the $29 ebook in ten evenings using the schedule on page 8, then sell it with a week of stories, one reveal post and DMs. Estimate with that push behind it: $4,823–$7,234.
- 3 Before the new year reset
Record Module 2 of the Visual Habit Architecture System and run the six-phase launch into January, the strongest reset month of the year. Conservative estimate $33,260.

Every figure in this document is an estimate based on your public profile data and the analysis in this audit. None of them is a guarantee; the assumptions are printed next to each one so you can judge them yourself.

How this was made: I build automations for a living and used AI to do the heavy lifting on the analysis of your posts and engagement — which is why this took an evening rather than a fortnight.
